The fund generated a strong positive return during the first week of June 2020 as risky assets rallied on the back of the reopening of the core economies whose data surprised on the upside, paving the way for a perfectly V-shaped recovery. However, the performance trajectory proved more volatile for the remainder of the month as investors' concerns over a second wave of contagion in the USA increased.

On government bonds, the contribution from the three layers of the G4 strategies proved neutral as core bond markets and yield curves stayed put over the period under review. The non-G4 sovereign bond diversification benefitted from the tightening in both the 10-year Italian BTP-Bund, and the 10-year Mexican Bonos-UST spreads. Mexican government bonds were supported by Banxico's decision to cut rates to 5%.

Overall, FX strategies detracted from performance as both the Mexican peso and the Brazilian real came under renewed pressure, retracing against the US dollar by -3% and -2% (carry incl.), respectively. Unfortunately, the gains emanating from the long Asian FX were not sufficient to offset the aforementioned losses. The short US exposure as well as the interbloc short JPY vs. CAD & EUR strategy incurred a few gains. The intra-bloc positioning came out mixed; on the one hand, the EUR-bloc allocation posted negative returns due to the euro's underperformance against the Swiss franc and its outperformance against the GBP, whilst, on the other hand, the commodity-bloc allocation proved positive thanks to the good showing of the AUD/CAD.

Credit positions fared well with Turkish sovereigns, EMU banks and Mexican corporates stimulated by central bank support.
